ABSTRACT

[0085]   A system and method of remotely debugging an orchestration service instance providing a means for establishing a communications connection with a computer, wherein the computer is executing a business process service instance. Stored tracking information regarding the orchestration service instance is read, and the orchestration service instance is remotely debugged by way of the communications connection and according to the stored tracking state information.